FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

If I currently hold a Switching certification do I need to take the new exam to maintain a valid certification?

No, if you are a current Switching certification holder you do not need to take the new exam until you reach your certification expiration date. You can view all of your certifications on the HPE MyLearning portal. Login and click "training" then "training history" to view all of your certifications with the achievement and expiration date.

I recently took the OS Switch training, can I still take the OS Switch exam?

Yes the OS Switch based ACSA & ACSP exams (exam code: HPE6-A41 & HPE6-A45) are still available until they go inactive on 11/1/2020.

Is training on the OS Switch still available?

Yes the Aruba Switching Fundamentals and Implementing Aruba Switching courses are still available. Effective 11/1/2020 these courses will transition to product training and the course names will change to Configuring Aruba OS Switching Part 1 & Part 2.

I have the ACSA based on the OS Switch, can I go straight to ACSP on OS CX Switch?

Yes, regardless of which exam you took the ACSA will qualify for the ACSP prerequisite. Please understand you are expected to have the knowledge and skills from the OS CX Associate and Aruba highly recommends attending the latest training to prepare for the exam. To help with this transition there are several New Product Introduction videos on OS CX available on the Airheads Learning Community.
